

SCHOOL GUIDE

Times of India Ahmedabad Edition

Today's educational challenges include lessons from the world beyond the classrooms. To facilitate quality education of the child, it is essential to ignite young minds with an engaging curriculum based on the constructive approach that enables them to think independently and express freely. While implementing the curriculum, children should be encouraged and empowered to reflect on their own learning. The imaginative activities and opportunities for collaboration and shared thinking woven in the curriculum give them freedom to generate new ideas. Further, individualistic approach creates selflearners who are able to learn, unlearn and relearn. It is essential to adopt such methodology that caters to all types of learners and brings out the best in them. The teaching-learning process becomes a joyful experience for everyone if stressfree learning environment is created.
